BESPOKE DESIGN

The designers at Maison Studio share their inspiration for beautiful interiors

For Kimberly Dean and Saxon Curpier, co-owners and principals at Maison Studio in Jackson Hole, Wyoming, the understanding of the profound effect of the spaces we inhabit is the common thread woven through all of their designs.

"I've come to understand that one's experiences are greatly affected by the physical and spiritual quality of one's environment," says Dean. "Our designs intentionally promote serenity and have an ease about them," adds Curpier. "We believe home should be a place of sanctuary."

The ultimate goal for Dean and Curpier is to provide clients with a more connected and richer living experience. Maison Studio delivers with a holistic approach that attends to every artisanal detail. "We search for the soul of each project," says Dean. "There is no single design formula to which we prescribe; and though our designs are sometimes subtle, there is depth. Good design is subtle, yet immense in its impact."

The magic formula for the duo's nonpareil design perspective boils down to the influence of their west coast (Dean) and east coast (Curlpier) upbringings, extensive travel experiences, a love of art and antiques, and a cohesive mindset.

Add in the awe-inspiring natural landscape and the influence of the American West, and the result is a sophisticated, refreshing mountain aesthetic.

While Maison Studio's unique design perspective is the backbone of all of their designs, each project is a unique amalgam of their style combined with the personal style of their clients.

"We adore collaborating with our clients," they say, "and our clients love the direction we bring with our signature look, which they could not have achieved on their own. Just as we are all unique, so too are our designs. Each project is truly one of a kind."
